6. Bicycle Colorado-Moving People Forward Half-Day Conference Recap:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • David McWilliams, Lois Remley, Mark Humbert & Mark Heidt all reported back on what sessions they attended. • Lois Remley attended Measuring transit community authority Denver Transit presentation. They are looking for drivers for RTD, short staffed. • Mark Humbert also attended Measuring transit community authority Denver Transit presentation. Inclusiveness transit transportation (includes sidewalk access) there are a lot of places with no sidewalks and limited buses. They need to get out into the community to hear all the problems with limited or no access in Denver. Most accessibility for handicap in the state are Fort Collins and Boulder. Durango and Breckenridge are bike friendly accessible. City of Brighton will hold an open house need to make city accessible to all. May need to reach out and get information from Boulder, Fort Collins, Durango, and Breckenridge. • Mark Heidt and David McWilliams attended the Micro Mobility Measuring presentation. The presentation went over scooters, e-bikes, and getting people out in the community to use the items. David believed that the City of Brighton is going the right route, some items the City of Brighton is ahead of other communities. • Adaptive Bike Library is a program where people with disabilities can be placed on a list to have a bike delivered for them to use. When they have finished using the bike, it will then be picked up. Fort Collins is a community that is currently using this program. 	No Action
